

Sanjeev Chawla, PhD, DABMP.

Assistant Professor of Radiology at University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Chawla is a Medical Physicist certified by American Board of Medical Physics and is currently working in the Department of Radiology, Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, USA as a Research Assistant Professor. Dr. Chawla's research interest includes development and application of advanced MR imaging and spectroscopy techniques to study brain tumors and neurodegenerative diseases. Dr. Chawla has authored 92 peer-reviewed original research/review articles and 7 book chapters. He is a recipient of research grant awards from NIH, ISMRM, Penn Center for Precision Medicine, McCabe foundation, Institute for Translational Medicine and Therapeutics and Research foundation of University of Pennsylvania.

Speech Title: Emerging Metabolic Imaging and Spectroscopic Methods to Study Neurodegenerative Diseases.